Preface

By the mid 19th Century, unable to sustain their large families during the potato famine and after years of impost by government and landlords, many Irish turned to the distant shores of Australia, the Americas, England and New Zealand, looking for a fuller life.

The anniversary of the first migration of members of the Carrucan families of Fanore and Fisherstreet [Doolin], provides an occasion to honour those forebears who faced critical decisions concerning a family's survival.

Bridget Carrucan was first of this family to leave the home village of Fanore, County Clare, in November 1853. Soon after her marriage in Australia, her brothers Patrick and Peter joined her and were followed by their mother after their father's death in 1862. In the 1880's, two of their great-nieces chose to migrate to the USA while a cousin, also named Bridget¹ went to South Australia. From these small beginnings a family numbering more than five thousand members has burgeoned.

A tribute to the Carrucan Clan records² '...there is a saying in the Irish language - still spoken in the land where your forebears were born - Mura gcuirfidh tú san earrach ní bhainfidh tú san fhómhar - which can be translated - if you do not sow in the Spring you will not reap in the Autumn.'

It is those forbears whom we honour and dedicate this Book.

This Commemoration, almost exactly one hundred and fifty years later, is marked by two volumes under the title Dirt Poor ~ Spirit Rich. The first volume, in preparation, is a family history including anecdotes and memoirs; this, the current volume is a Register, in Family Tree form, of descendants of a single couple³.

Family Prayer

Creator God:

We are of or have been scattered from Erin's shores to lands under the Southern Cross, or fringing Altanta's Main. May we, who are of, or are drawn to this line, re-forge our common bonds? In our rediscovered unity, we may know ourselves as women and men who have been made new. Inspire us to walk even as Christ walked: and go on our way in faith and gladness, care and compassion, healing and love

The Carrucan Story

The Beginnings

This family line stretches back to the village of Fanore Beg and Fisherstreet on the shores of the rugged West Coast of County Clare, Ireland. In 1829, Bridget Gorman married Patrick Carrucan and they had six children ~ Michael, Patrick, Bridget, Peter, Martha [who died in childhood], Denis, about whom we know little and possibly another daughter, Mary, for whom there is no baptismal record, but who is listed in the Griffith's Index as being of the household.. Also living in Fisherstreet was a contemporary, Denis ⁴, who married Mary Sexton of Corofin, in 1835. It is recorded that Denis and Mary moved from Fisherstreet and settled in Dromother in the south of County Clare.

Bridget and her three brothers grew to adulthood, likewise, another Bridget, daughter of Denis and Mary. Each founded the lines of family which we honour today and which stretch from one end of the earth to the other.

Patrick [Senior] and Denis subsisted as tenant farmers, also fishing the waters of the Atlantic from their timber framed, hide bound Curraghs. We know that in 1850, Patrick was the tenant of a house [one of 23] in Fisherstreet, (Doolin) and was also tenant of over 17 acres on the Townland of Fanore Beg, 12 km. distant from Fisherstreet, which he farmed. Later the family moved to a cottage in Fanore. Denis, too, held tenancies of a house in Fisherstreet and land in Doolin, from the same property owner, but Denis moved his family to the village of Dromother in the south of the County close to the Shannon River.

⁴ Whilst corroborating documentary evidence is lacking, that which we have points to the likelihood of Patrick and Denis being either brothers or cousins, sufficient for us to assume a close relationship for this study.

In turn, Patrick's son Michael took over the farm and then it passed to his son Denis. Today, Dennis' grandson Patrick (Patsy), his wife Anne and their family occupy the property which has expanded five fold from when Patrick senior first husbanded it.

There is still much for us to discover about life in the early days

The Crisis

In November 1853, Bridget boarded the sailing ship Truro bound for Melbourne Town and arrived on the 31st January, 1854 - a voyage of 86 days. We next hear of her in the hamlet of Eltham, on the banks of the Yarra River 25 k. North West of Melbourne.

Bridget could neither read nor write. She came by assisted passage to work as a domestic for Mr. Edward Fennessy of St. Kilda, bonded for one month, wages 25 pounds per annum plus rations.

She met and married a widower, John James Coleman ⁵, the ceremony being held at Culla Hill, the home of an earlier settler, Thomas Sweeney, whose family was later destined to link with the Carrucan families. John was born in the Village of Ramsbury in Wiltshire, England, where his family came from a long line of brewers. John had emigrated to work for the Van Diemen's Land Company. In Tasmania. he married Elizabeth Lennard, a convict. They eventually crossed Bass Strait and sadly, Elizabeth died in 1854 at Lower Plenty. John was left with three children under the age of 16 years, whom he brought into his second marriage.

One branch of the family has opted for the spelling Colman.

Two years after her marriage, Patrick (Jun.) and his bride, Mary O'Brien, joined Bridget and John Coleman in Eltham and Peter arrived with his betrothed, Hannah Woods, whom he married on February 2nd 1859. The two couples also settled at Eltham. In 1862, after her husband Patrick's death, Bridget Carrucan née Gorman, mother of Bridget, Patrick and Peter joined her children in Eltham where she remained, until her death in 1901.

In 1866, Bridget Mary Carrucan, daughter of Denis Carrucan and Mary Sexton, ventured to South Australia aboard the Charlotte Gladstone, leaving Plymouth on 13 March 1866 and arriving in Adelaide, South Australia, 17 June 1866. She was described in the Ship's manifest as a Dairymaid, age 20.

She married John Doube and raised a family in South Australia. John Doube also came from the village of Dromother in the south of County Clare, whence Denis had brought his family. Did he follow her? John Doube's Protestant family ancestors, known as Palatines had emigrated to Ireland under pressure of religious persecution, continued foreign occupation and adverse seasons, from an area of Germany between the Rhine and the Nechar rivers known as the Palatinate.

In the 1880's Ellen and Bridget, Michael and Mary Carrucans' daughters migrated to the United States. There Ellen married and founded another Carrucan line. We have no further trace of Bridget.

For the purposes of this volume six distinct descendant, family lines are identified.

- The Michael Line ~ descendants of Michael Carrucan and Mary Droney; this line includes the family descended from Ellen, Michael and Mary's daughter, who emigrated to America.
- The Bridget Line ~ descendants of Bridget Carrucan and John Coleman.
- The Coleman Line ~ descendants of John Coleman, by his first marriage with Elizabeth Lennard
- The Patrick Line ~ descendants of Patrick Carrucan and Mary O'Brien.
- The Peter Line ~ descendants of Peter Carrucan and Hannah Woods.
- The Denis Line ~ to avoid confusing it with an already existing Bridget Line, it is derived from the parallel family of Denis Carrucan and Mary Sexton's daughter, Bridget Mary, who married John Doube in South Australia.

One branch of Peter's Line has settled in New Zealand and another in West Australia, while branches of the family are also to be found in Queensland.

The Descendants

The descendants are recorded in the family lines defined above, commencing with the generation of migration in the 1850's-80's. The reports of descendants are recorded for each of the Carrucan children, together with those of John Coleman's earlier family who comprised part of the blended family. Scrupulous care has been taken to establish accuracy of the reports, compiled from early historical records, augmented by invited submissions from key family members of additions beyond the fourth generation of each family line. Whilst the composition of a family is ever fluid, these reports can only be as accurate as respondents' replies.

A Descendant Report presents a verbal presentation of a Family Tree. It comprises a view forward of a family line showing the relationship of each member to the others, commencing with the first born. In this presentation, the generations are numbered sequentially from the founding recorded source. In layout, the data of each succeeding generation is indented. The vertical dotted lines link the members a generation. For ease of recognition, alternate generations are rendered in bold type.

The pages are presented in columns, the end of the first column continuing to the head of the right hand column on the page.
